LANGLEY OF BROSELEY, SALOP
LANGLEY OF OXLEY IN BUSHBURY, STAFFS

ARMS: Paly of six argent and vert (*1680) [PLOT]

CREST:

".....in the year 1661, this manor of Oxley was given by him [Sir Richard Leveson of Lilleshall, Salop K.B. c1598-1661] to John Langley, of Amyas, in the parish of Broseley, co. Salop, gent. his servant; upon whom he settled it in the year 1655. Which Mr. John Langley being a batchelor, died soon after his master; and by his will gave this manor to Mr. John Langley, his nephew, son of Timothy Langley, his brother, who is the present owner thereof ..." [SHAW II 186]

... it passed to John Langley, and from them to the grandfather of William Huskisson, esq. who sold it, in 1793, to James Hordern, the present proprietor [ERDESWICK (1844) 349]

In the Sixteenth century Oxley Manor had belonged to the Leveson Family of Trentham Hall but in 1655 it was given to John Langley, a steward of the Levesons. It remained in that family until 1752 when the following notice appeared in the Birmingham newspaper "Aris' Gazette": "To be sold, the Manor of Oxley, in the County of Stafford, consisting of a capital messuage, situate within one mile of Wolverhampton, and four hundred acres of land, all within a ring hedge some part of which extends within half a mile of the said town. This is one of the fittest farms in the county. For particulars enquire of Mr. Gitten in Bridgnorth or Mr. Langley in Shrewsbury"

The buyer was Samuel Swinfen, who in 1749 had changed his name from Grundy in order to inherit the estate of his uncle, (also Samuel). The nephew, of Swinfen near Lichfield, with his inheritance purchased several Staffordshire estates besides Oxley, and although he never lived at Oxley he rebuilt the old sixteenth century house for his sister Dorothy. She was the first wife of William Huskisson who bought Bushbury Manor in 1774 from Elizabeth, widow of Richard Cavendish (Chandler). [INTERNET]
